In the United States, American Sikhs are barred from service in the US military unless they remove their religiously-mandated turban and cut religiously-mandated uncut hair. Over the past five years, the United States Army has made one-time, individual exemptions for three Sikh soldiers, allowing them to maintain their religiously-mandated turbans and uncut hair. Similarly, the Washington DC Police Department made a change in policy to allow any Sikh police officer to serve with his or her turban and uncut hair.

4. Do you support a change in United States military policy so that Sikhs would have an opportunity to serve our military while maintaining their turbans and uncut hair without requiring them to seek special, hard to obtain, revocable accommodations in order to do so?
See attached response
5. Will you encourage law enforcement agencies in your Congressional district to allow Sikhs to serve as police officers without removing their religiously-mandated turbans and uncut hair?
yes

This year marks the 30th anniversary of anti-Sikh pogroms in India. In the first week of November 1984, at least 3,000 Sikhs were killed in New Delhi alone.^{1 2 3} Government officials, law enforcement officers, and military forces failed to prevent or participated in the slaughter.⁴ In many documented incidents, public officials distributed voter lists and weapons used to locate and kill Sikh men, women, and children.⁵ Most of the perpetrators of the pogroms have not been brought to justice⁶ and many have flourished in government and political party positions.⁷

4.) Do you support a change in military policy so that Sikhs would have an opportunity to serve our military while maintaining their turbans & uncut hair without requiring them to seek special, hard to obtain, revocable accommodations to do so?

I greatly sympathize with the plight of Sikhs who wish to serve our nation without sacrificing their identity in the process. I believe that this decision should be left up to individual unit commanders. I agree fully that there are roles within the military that Sikhs should be allowed to fulfill without having to remove turbans or cut hair. However, there are certain roles, such as being a Navy SEAL for example, that I believe would be hard to serve without adhering to existing policy. I remain open to further dialog on this subject.
